

South Africa

Logistics between two oceans

Number 1 in Africa

With its abundant natural resources, modern financial centres, and thriving import and export sectors, South Africa accounts for a quarter of the gross domestic product of the entire African continent. The country also has a long established reputation as a major international logistics gateway, and is ranked number one amongst African countries on the World Bank's Logistics Performance Index.

Quality backed by experience

Logwin has been operating in South Africa since 1976, when it established its first branch in Johannesburg. We have been continuously expanding our presence in the region ever since. With our local know-how, international expertise and global network, we provide our customers with the benefits of being an experienced, full-service logistics enterprise.

Fully connected

With over 1.2 million square kilometres and more than 3,000 kilometres of coastline, South Africa poses significant challenges in terms of logistics. We bridge the gap for our customers and keep them fully connected. We provide direct deliveries throughout South Africa and into a number of neighbouring African countries, as well as air and ocean freight to major international trading centres.
