

Logwin Plants Trees for a Greener Future – Commitment to Sustainability Starts Right at Its Own Doorstep

Sustainability is not just a buzzword at Logwin, it is also a way of life. The tree planting initiative in the Oberhübnerwald forest near Stockstadt, Bavaria, represents a concrete step towards reforestation and the protection of regional forests.

Grevenmacher (Luxembourg) / Großostheim (Germany) – Sustainability thrives through action – under this motto, Logwin employees took part in a planting event on October 25, 2025, in the Oberhübnerwald near Stockstadt. Together with forestry experts, 200 climate-resistant trees, including Atlas cedars and red oaks, were planted as an active contribution to reforestation and local forest protection.

The 140-year-old pine and spruce stand in this area had been severely damaged in recent years due to bark beetle infestations, windthrow, and drought. Particularly the spruce stands had been almost completely destroyed, leaving large open areas. The planting initiative aims at sustainable reforestation to counteract the spread of blackberry bushes and grasses and to ensure a stable forest generation for the future.

A Small Step with a Big Impact

As a global logistics service provider, Logwin is fully aware of its responsibilities. Sustainability is not a one-time event but a long-term goal for the company. This includes many small measures, directly in the areas where Logwin operates. The tree planting project in Stockstadt is part of a series of international initiatives where Logwin strengthens local partnerships and focuses on ecological issues. Worldwide, employees are actively involved in environmental and social projects.
