

Logwin at the City Festival in AschaffenburgChance to win a job interview

Grevenmacher (Luxembourg) – Logwin is again taking part in the Aschaffenburg City Festival: the logistics service provider has its largest German branch here and is a major employer in the city. “In light of this, the topic of training is very important for us,” says Joana Bätz, Director of Personnel Development at Logwin. “That’s why 17 of our trainees are in charge of the stand this year. They will be talking about the various career opportunities with Logwin both in Germany and abroad, and are looking forward to a multitude of visitors.”

There’s a special surprise awaiting teenagers and young adults who are interested in training at Logwin: as part of a quiz, they have the opportunity to win a job interview. Participants must answer questions about logistics. And Logwin also hasn’t forgotten its youngest visitors – they can be photographed in the Logwin soapbox car and take their picture with them soon afterwards.

(Inter)national Training

Logwin has an average of 35 trainees at their Aschaffenburg branch. The company will soon be welcoming a new batch of employees: On September 1, four young men and six young women will be starting their training in Aschaffenburg – of these, six are training as commercial specialists for forwarding and logistics services, two as commercial office managers, one as a specialist for warehousing logistics and one as an IT clerk. Furthermore, four students are beginning their Dual Studies with their practical phase at Logwin. Those who are particularly engaged and dedicated during their training have the opportunity to work for several weeks at a Logwin branch abroad. Whether it’s an international or national career, Logwin offers a variety of possibilities and fields of activity.
